The Faculty of Architecture and Planning: two fundamental academic subjects under the umbrella of one faculty, which takes different perspectives and differentiated key focuses to deal with the questions and challenges of the development and design of our environment. It's a structure that distinguishes us from many other architectural or planning faculties and, in view of the resulting areas of intersection, yields an international and genuinely outstanding profile. As one of the most renowned study, research and teaching institutes in the Central European region, we fulfil our task of providing an education that is based on research and oriented on practice. Our students are groomed to take on responsible posts in industry and society and also in research and studies within the framework of two Bachelor, three Master and two PhD degree courses.
